We Learn More From Failure Than Success Essay Essay

"If at first you don't succeed, try and try again" Failure is often a better teacher in life than success. Because we go through so many things in life, both good and bad, we have to learn from our mistakes and hope we won't have to go through them again. One may consider success as being a major influence on whom we are to date, but in all reality, it's our own failures that help us learn, encourages us to keep going, and prepares us for future failures that are bound to happen. We learn what doesn't work which actually gets us closer to being successful in life. Lastly, our mistakes are what prepare us for our future failures that are bound to happen.

By having gone through these experiences, we are able to better prep for these incidences that we will encounter many more times in our lifetimes. By definition success would only be proving that we can do something right the first time, but we wouldn't be getting the whole feel to it. Overall, I believe that everything happens for a reason even if it is failure. We shouldn't view failure as being a bad thing, but rather look at it as an attempt in which we will need to work harder at. There's always something to learn and we sho
