Little Fighters: Miracle Conjoined Twins One Year On is the inspiring story of their extraordinary journey. From their premature birth to their groundbreaking surgeries to their first steps, Aaliyah and Amilliah's story is a testament to the power of hope, love, and the human spirit.

A Premature Birth

Aaliyah and Amilliah were born on December 19, 2018, at just 23 weeks gestation. They weighed just 1 pound, 1 ounce each and were conjoined at the chest and abdomen. Their lungs were underdeveloped, and they were both struggling to breathe. The doctors gave them a 0% chance of survival.

But Aaliyah and Amilliah's parents, Ashlee and Matt, refused to give up hope. They knew that their daughters were fighters, and they were determined to do everything they could to give them a chance at life.

Groundbreaking Surgeries

Aaliyah and Amilliah underwent a series of groundbreaking surgeries at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. The first surgery, which took place when the girls were just 3 months old, lasted for 11 hours. The surgeons successfully separated the girls' chests and abdomens. The second surgery, which took place when the girls were 11 months old, lasted for 10 hours. The surgeons successfully separated the girls' hearts and lungs. Both surgeries were performed by a team of world-renowned surgeons led by Dr. Alan Flake, the chief of the Division of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

The surgeries were a success, and Aaliyah and Amilliah have made remarkable progress since then. They are now both able to breathe, eat, and move on their own. They are also starting to develop their own personalities, and they love to play with their toys and each other.

First Steps

One of the most significant milestones in Aaliyah and Amilliah's journey was when they took their first steps. Aaliyah took her first steps on June 17, 2020, and Amilliah took her first steps on June 24, 2020. It was a moment of great joy for their parents and the entire medical team who had worked so hard to help them reach this milestone.

Aaliyah and Amilliah are now walking with assistance, and they are getting stronger every day. They are both doing well and are looking forward to a bright future.
