For the next two years, they traveled over 20,000 miles, visiting 48 states and creating countless memories along the way. They camped in national parks, hiked to mountain summits, explored historic landmarks, and met all sorts of interesting people.

Along the way, they learned a lot about themselves and about the world around them. They learned that they could be more resourceful than they ever thought possible. They learned that they could find adventure anywhere they looked. And they learned that there is no better way to bond with your family than to share an unforgettable experience together.

Their journey was not without its challenges. There were flat tires, mechanical breakdowns, and moments of doubt. But through it all, they never lost sight of their goal to have fun and create lasting memories.

In They're More Fun Than Tacos, the Mayhew family shares their story with humor, heart, and a healthy dose of self-deprecation. They offer practical advice for other families who dream of hitting the road, and they provide a unique perspective on what it means to live life to the fullest.
